At GEMS Legacy School, the management and staff firmly believe that students should build their global understanding through reading while creating a mental map of related ideas. We strive to integrate reading and writing as interconnected processes, rather than teaching them separately. By providing students with ample opportunities to write in conjunction with reading, we aim to enhance their skills in both areas, including critical thinking.

The activities planned for Reading Week are designed to develop multiple core literacy skills and foster a lifelong love of both reading and writing among all learners. Additional details will be provided by the respective class teachers.

We look forward to your wholehearted support.

Warm regards,
